About the editors

Zhi-Qiang Zhang is the chief editor of Zootaxa. He was born in Shanghai, China and educated at Fudan University (Shanghai), where he received his BSc in Zoology. He did his PhD in entomology at Cornell University (Ithaca, New York, USA) from 1988 to 1992 and worked as a research associate at Oregon State University, Corvallis, Oregon, USA from 1992 to 1994. During 1994–1999, he was an acarologist for the CABI International Institute of Entomology based in the Department of Entomology, The Natural History Museum, London, UK. He also served as a Technical Officer for the Secretariat of the BioNET-International (The Global Network for Taxonomy) from 1998 to 1999. Since 1999, he has been a researcher and curator (Acari) at the New Zealand Arthropod Collection, Landcare Research, Auckland, New Zealand. Zhi-Qiang holds adjunct/honorary positions at several universities in China and is an Honorary Research Fellow of The Natural History Museum (London). He is the president of the Systematic & Applied Acarology Society and a member of the International Executive Committee of the International Congress of Acarology. Since 2006 he has been a Commissioner of the International Commission on Zoological Nomenclature. Zhi-Qiang's research is centred around the systematics, diversity and ecology of the Acari, and is represented in over 200 publications on a broad range of taxa, including ten books on mite taxonomy and biology.

William A. Shear is Trinkle Distinguished Professor of Biology at Hampden-Sydney College, Hampden-Sydney, Virginia, USA, and an Associate Editor of Zootaxa. A native of Pennsylvania, his undergraduate degree is from the College of Wooster. He earned a Master of Science from the University of New Mexico in 1965 and a PhD in Evolutionary Biology from Harvard University in 1971, as a student of Herbert W. Levi. He held teaching posts at Concord College and the University of Florida before arriving at Hampden-Sydney in 1974. He is a research associate of the American Museum of Natural History and Senior Research Fellow at the Virginia Museum of Natural History, and has served as President of the American Arachnological Society. He has published more than 250 articles and chapters, and his research has been continuously supported by the National Science Foundation of the United States since 1980. His research focuses on biodiversity in myriapods and arachnids, as well as the paleontology of early terrestrial ecosystems. He has also published on evolutionary developmental biology, behavioral biology and chemical ecology, and was author/editor of the influential book, SPIDERS: WEBS, BEHAVIOR AND EVOLUTION.
