

<https://doi.org/10.11646/zootaxa.5428.4.10>
<http://zoobank.org/urn:lsid:zoobank.org:pub:C987FC3B-F85F-4A87-AFD4-B519C71C7BB9>

TIAGO ARANTES, LENICE SOUZA-SHIBATTA & GUSTAVO MONTEIRO TEIXEIRA (2024) Description of a new species of Aegla (Decapoda, Anomura) from the Paraná 3 hydrographic basin, Brazil. Zootaxa, 5418 (4): 371–384.

Missing Figures 6 & 7.

FIGURE 6. Aegla urussanga sp. nov., male holotype, CLE 22.0 mm, Paraná 3 River Basin, Paraná, Brazil, MZUEL 545: A, dorsal view of greater cheliped (left), rudimentary palmar crest; B, ventral view of the ischium of the greater cheliped (left) with two spines and one tubercle (black arrows); C, dorsal view of minor cheliped (right) showing rudimentary palmar crest; D, ventral view of the ischium of the minor cheliped (right) with two spines and two tubercles (black arrows). Scale = 1.0 mm.

FIGURE 7. Aegla urussanga sp. nov., Paraná 3 River Basin, Paraná, Brazil, MZUEL 545: A, juvenile male (CLE 12mm) MZUEL 525, dorsal view of palmar crest and chelipeds, white arrows indicate spines; B, juvenile female (CLE 11,75 mm) MZUEL 525, dorsal view of palmar crest and chelipeds, white arrows indicate spines. Scale = 1.0 mm.